COME AND CASH in on our Benefits System and Social Services! That is Labour's message to the millions of economic migrants getting ready in Eastern Europe and the Third World to come to Britain. By granting yet another amnesty to thousands of asylum seekers, Tony Blair and his gang are raising the white flag and announcing that they can't stop the 'asylum invasion' of our country. 15,000 heads of families granted leave to stay in Britain in real terms means anything up to 90,000 immigrants, going by the latest birth rate figures and this "final amnesty" follows on to the "final amnesty" that Jack Straw granted to 21,500 illegal immigrants in 1999.

Before this the Tory government of John Major granted a "final amnesty" to 30,000 illegal immigrants and their dependents in 1994 and this was announced in Parliament by the new Tory leader, Michael Howard, who was then Home Secretary.

The Government hasn't got the guts to deport the millions of illegal immigrants that have arrived in Britain over the last three years, so the only way to reduce official figures is to turn illegal immigrants into legal immigrants.

Labour's message to the chancers and the bone idle of the developing world is clear: "Come to Britain and remain here illegally for long enough and you will be allowed to stay."

Only the British National Party will stop this flood. No more asylum seekers, no more economic migrants, no more immigration!

Margate poll puts BNP on course for 2 South East MEPs

FROM nowhere to third in the poll with nearly 20% of the total vote.

That was the excellent news from Margate in Kent, where at the very first attempt the British National Party has set out its credentials as a major political player in the town. Robert Parker, who had spent eight years in the Conservative Party before joining the BNP last year, was delighted to come within just 29 votes of replacing the Tories as the main opposition to Labour in the seaside town. But what pleased local party workers most was the drubbing the BNP had dished out to the United Kingdom Independence Party. One campaigner told Freedom:

"Next June we need to pick up all the anti-EU vote. This result shows that the BNP are the only viable alternative to the pro-Europe parties and I hope results like this will bring well-meaning UKIP supporters on board with us so that we can register a united vote against Brussels."

Back in May, in nearby Westgate-on-Sea, the BNP had polled 17% and the Margate result maintains our percentage in this part of Kent.

At the 1999 European Election Elections the Lib-Dems had two MEPs elected in the South East with 15.3% of the vote so this is the sort of target the BNP has to be aiming for.

Blair starts the run-down to an EU Army

THE British Army is being run down as the Labour Government prepares to sign over the defence of Britain to the European Union and its European Army.

Commanders in the field say our Army is 5,000 soldiers undermanned at the moment, training is increasingly being done "on the job under operational conditions where mistakes cost lives" and its organisation seems to be being "run on a shoestring."

David Brogan, a captain in the Territorial Army who served in Iraq, said he had been given just nine days notice of call up, which left him no time to get family and home matters sorted out. He went off to war not knowing when he would be paid or even how much he would be paid.

MURDER SCENE: North Street in Colne in Lancashire where Sean Whyte was stabbed to death last month.

Labour and the Lib-Dems oblivious to this tragedy waiting to happen

WHEN seventeen year-old Sean White was stabbed to death outside his North Street home in Colne in Lancashire, a family was left to grieve the loss of a son and a community a hard-working youngster.

Sean was half way through an IT course at the Pendle Training Centre, where manager, Geoff Dawes, described him as "one of the brightest pupils on the course." He was a regular at the North Valley Youth Club in Birtwhistle and was liked by everyone.

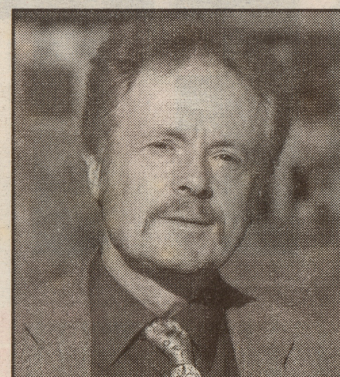

Police have arrested Hasan Mumtaz (18) and his brother Wazim Mumtaz (21) in connection with the attack on Sean and his aunt Agnes Rennie.

Local Labour and Lib-Dem councillors expressed their surprise at the disturbance with Frank Clifford claiming that North Street was a 'relaxed' area.

But this wasn't how Vivary Bridge BNP candidate, Brian Norton Parker, found things when campaigning there in May. He told Freedom:

"Things were very tense there. Life was made very unpleasant for us when we were putting out our election leaflets. We had to call the police out three times because of intimidation, common assault and death threats by a crowd that quickly gathered every time we tried to leaflet. Youths followed us in a car on one occasion and threatened to run over our secretary, Valerie.

NOT SURPRISED: Brian Norton Parker, the BNP's candidate in Vivary Bridge ward in May.

"After the first incident I asked the police if they could be at the North Street and Keighley Avenue junction, where we had the trouble before, and wait while we quickly got the leaflets out. But they said they didn't have the manpower to do that, although in the end they had to come out anyway when I dialled 999 because we were being threatened again.

"Our team did everything possible to ensure that there was no provocation on our part. We used the electoral register to make sure we were only delivering to houses with British sounding names.

"We make a point of showing the police every leaflet we are putting out before we cover any area in Pendle."

* In May Brian polled 30% of the vote in Vivary Bridge Ward finishing just 61 votes behind the victorious Liberal Democrat candidate.

Oliver ("Please may I have 60,000 more asylum seekers every year?") Left-Wing

by Brian Galloway

SO OLIVER Letwin, the Shadow Home Secretary, thinks the Tories can solve Britain's immigration and asylum problem.

He says a Conservative Government will take an orderly quota of 20,000 'genuine' asylum seekers each year, which the United Nations have selected. As each asylum seeker can also bring two dependants into Britain, that 20,000 now becomes 60,000 per year!

So those are the facts - now for the fantasy.

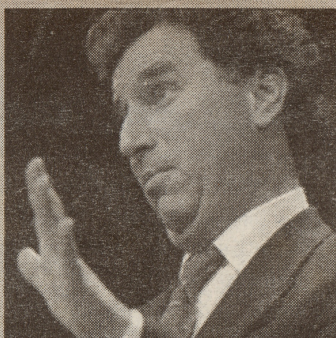

There is this perfect, totally remote island that Britain still owns. It's big enough to house several hundred thousand asylum seekers, in high standard accommodation, together with several thousand staff.

It will have an airport terminal and runway able to handle a couple of jumbo jets every hour. We must also not forget it must have a superb 5 star hotel and be able to cater for the hundreds of grossly overpaid lawyers fighting all the appeals.

Yes, this is the Conservative Party's plan; to ship them all out to this remote island while their respective asylum claims are being dealt with.

They do state the accommodation will be secure, but by that they mean they will all be safe in their beds every night. They will not have to worry about murderers, rapists, muggers, drug pushers, sex offenders and burglars ruining their lives, while the rest of us hard working, law abiding, tax paying mugs have to every day. Believe it or not, the Conservatives think they are ready to start running our country again.

Now this is the real fantasy!

Labour plan to head off the BNP challenge

LABOUR has launched a new document which sets out plans for local constituency parties 'to head off the challenge from the emerging BNP'.

21st Century Party; The Next Steps calls for complete reorganisation at constituency level dividing local parties into "clusters" to develop policies.

The recommendations have been described as "too little, too late" by some members. They have torn up their membership cards in protest at policies such as tuition fees and foundation hospitals being adopted by Labour without ever appearing in the party's manifesto.

Thoughts on Immigration

- * The British people were never given the chance to vote on whether they wanted Britain to become a 'multicultural' society.
- * The British National Party is opposed to 'multiculturalism' because it fragments society and generates conflict.
- * The British National Party seeks to protect and preserve the ethnic and cultural integrity of the British people.
- * Labour and Conservative Governments, for the past fifty-five years, have allowed large scale immigration into Britain from the Third World against the clear wishes of the British people.
- * Now leading population experts predict that the native British people will be a minority in our own country within 60 years.
- * The British National Party will end immigration and the settlement of asylum seekers in Britain.
- * The British National Party will encourage immigrants to return to their country of ethnic origin by providing generous financial incentives to help those who want to return home.

Census shock for TEN Brum wards

THE 2001 Census has revealed some very worrying population trends in Birmingham.

The city is made up of thirty-nine council wards and in ten of these the ethnic minority population now nearly exceeds that of the British population or in some cases actually dwarfs it.

It ranges from 49% in Ladywood to nearly 82% in Handsworth. As these figures come from the two year-old survey they DO NOT include asylum seekers, illegal immigrants, and natural growth since the census.

For this it is quite reasonable to add another 5% to all 2001 figures to give a more up to date and accurate representation - hence Ladywood, given as 49%, should be 54%.

Interestingly the wards with the highest ethnic minority population also have the highest percentages of people under 16, the lowest percentages of people over 60 and the lowest average ages!

SALFORD'S HOPE HOSPITAL No money for refurbishments.

Manchester faces new health crisis

THE Manchester Strategic Health Authority, which holds the budget for health care services in Greater Manchester, is facing financial collapse.

A report prepared by accountants, Grant Thornton, predicts a deficit of £12 million for Manchester's 14 Primary Care Trusts by the end of this financial year, with this deficit rising to £430 million by 2007/8.

To cut costs, the new specialist children's hospital in central Manchester will be put on hold, along with plans for refurbishing Salford's Hope and Tameside General Hospitals.

The financial crisis also means that projects for primary care, mental health, cardiac treatment, cancer care and intermediate care will all face the axe.

Manchester has some of the worst health care indices, with average life expectancy now one of the lowest in the country. The city has higher mortality rates than the national average on all the major diseases.

The crisis in Manchester's health care services mirrors the rest of the country and exposes Labour's much vaunted increase in funding for the National Health Service as a fraud.

Immingham is now one of the main routes in for illegal immigrants

POLICE can't cope with the increasing number of illegal immigrants arriving in Grimsby and Cleethorpes.

Insp Martin Steel, of Immingham Police, said the latest influx was the highest officers had ever dealt with. The port is being made one of the main routes into the UK for bogus asylum seekers and economic migrants.

He said: "We have had a big influx over the past four weekends. There were 10 detained on just one night."

IMMINGHAM: The port provides easy access into Britain.

The cells of Cleethorpes Police Station have had to be opened up on a daily basis to cope with the overflow from Grimsby Police Station.

The Immingham route into the UK from European ports is now one of the easiest for asylum seekers because of a lack of immigration officers and ease of access into Grimsby.

Replacing the Scots

LABOUR councillor, Shami Khan, believes that asylum seekers provide a valuable resource for the future and wants more of them to come to Edinburgh.

Shami, who represents the people of Monkcastle ward said: "We are facing a population crisis in Scotland and it could be that more asylum seekers would be welcomed into a cosmopolitan city like this, as more of our own people go and work in other countries."

SHAMI KHAN: Asylum seekers would be welcome.

£8,000 for asylum guide

REFUGEES and asylum seekers in Edinburgh have been given a new pocket-sized safety guide, courtesy of the local council.

The guide aims to help asylum seekers find their way around the city, as well as providing advice on how to access the support services available in the city.

It's published in Arabic, Turkish, Bengali, Urdu, Kurdish, Punjabi and Mandarin and has cost local taxpayers £8,000.

The latest Indian takeaway

BNP says: 'Stop the export of our jobs'

By Steve Johnson

IF IT WASN'T bad enough that the global economy is been bringing cheap migrant labour to Britain to take over our jobs, now they are hitting us the other way by taking our jobs to the Third World.

It's called 'offshoring', and it's coming soon to a job near yours! Whilst the jobs that were grabbed by economic migrants here were mostly in the low paid end of the economy - in textiles, transport and health - the jobs that are going to the Third World now include top professional ones in computers, management and research.

It started with call centres moving to India so now when you book an airline flight over the telephone, ring your bank or dial directory enquiries, the chances are the person on the other end is in Bangalore. They've been trained to impersonate Britons by watching UK TV soaps, and they work for less than a tenth the UK legal minimum wage.

It then spread to computer programmers. BACS, which runs the inter-bank payments system that clears cheques and so on, is moving the running and maintenance of its computer systems to India, throwing many of its British staff onto the dole. City law firm, Allen and Overy, has just moved much of its paralegal and data processing jobs to India, again throwing the Britons who did those jobs onto the scrap heap.

Amicus, the largest Trade Union in the private sector, believes 200,000 UK finance sector jobs will be lost in the next five years to India alone.

City consultancy experts, Forrester, agree, predicting that over the next ten years a million British jobs, 50,000 of them in senior management, will go offshore. While Professor John Quelch, former Dean of London Business School warns that the pharmaceutical and research industries will follow IT and financial jobs shortly.

Allowing British jobs to go to Asia and letting economic migrants flood into Britain will destroy British industry and hence any future for our workforce.

Labour is the new party of Big Business, while the Tories are the old party of Big Business. They don't care and neither do the Liberal Democrats, the most fanatical advocates of globalisation of all.

We oppose the "offshoring" of our manufacturing sector, because it makes individual Britons jobless and our economy much weaker.

In the short term big business can juggle jobs and make a fast buck, but in the long term, everybody will lose out in the global marketplace.

The only policy that will save our jobs and our economy is the one the BNP have always put forward: That British markets should be reserved for British goods and services produced in Britain by British workers.

TESCO GOES EAST: The supermarket has opened a new IT centre in Bangalore and exported nearly 1,000 British jobs to India.

No protection from preying homosexuals

UNDER Scottish law men who have sex with boys of 14 will no longer face prosecution.

That's what one of Scotland's most influential judges in Scotland confirmed after an Appeal Court ruling dramatically altered the law governing homosexual sex.

The changes came into effect after the offence of shameful indecency was scrapped by law lords.

Sir Gerald Gordon, 74, one of the country's leading judges and foremost experts in legal affairs detailed this latest judicial ruling, explaining its implications:

"It would appear that consenting homosexual behaviour between an adult and a boy of 14, which would probably formerly have been treated as shameful indecency, is now no crime at all."

SIR GERALD GORDON: "The law is vague on what the lower legal age limit is."

"The law is vague on what the lower legal age limit is.

"Effectively, the age of consent for sex with males is no longer 16."

A spokesman for the BNP in Scotland was appalled by the ruling:

"Shameless indecency was part of common law. When the 1885 Criminal Law Amendment Act was scrapped in 1980, shameful indecency was all that was left to protect underage boys from preying homosexuals.

"Now this has been removed without any debate - a fundamental change in the law has taken place and the public know little or nothing about it."

1700 jobs to go as train enquiries moves to Bangalore!

BRITISH train travellers will soon be calling Bangalore to find out the departure times of trains at their local station, because Britain's National Rail Enquiries service is moving to India.

This export of 1,700 jobs to Asia will mean more Britons on the dole as the current call centres in Cardiff, Derby, Newcastle and Plymouth close down.

Taxpayer foots bill for asylum appeal cases

THE taxpayer has been left to foot a £250,000 legal bill for just three Asylum seeker appeal cases all brought under the Labour Government's Human Rights Act. All the claimants were funded by legal aid - ie taxpayers' money.

One case, brought by a family from Lithuania who sued a council over allegedly inadequate housing, never stood any prospect of success, yet it involved an eight day high court trial costing £112,000, to which had to be added the cost of the appeal.

Vladimiras and Ala Anufrijeva, and their three children, left their home in Vilnius, Lithuania, in 1998. They didn't like the maisonette provided by Southwark council in south London and were moved to a series of temporary homes as they fought to stay in Britain - all done at our expense thanks to Labour!

A new 10,000-seater mosque for Morden!

THE largest mosque complex in western Europe opened at the beginning of October - and it is in Morden in Surrey!

The main building will be able to house 10,000 worshippers under a huge 50-foot dome.

Hadhrat Mirza Masroor Ahmad told the Associated Press that the opening of the mosque was an historic occasion "... which adds to the heritage of British culture and to the presence of the Muslim community in Britain."

Labour's attack on our Post Offices

MORE local shops, pubs and Post Offices are set to close down over the next 12 months than ever before.

That's the conclusion of a survey of BNP councillors and Community Support Groups.

New Labour's slow motion privatisation of the Royal Mail is particularly damaging. The pressure to force pensioners and family allowance claimants to use bank accounts rather than collecting cash at their local Post Office, being the final blow for many sub-postmasters.

Asylum support cases are clogging up our courts

MOUNTING numbers of cases asking for financial support for asylum seekers who have been late registering their asylum claim are "clogging up" the courts and affecting their functioning as well as costing "a vast amount of public money". That's according to Justice Maurice Kay, the judge in charge of the Administrative Court list. He said that new cases were continuing to come in at a rate of sixty a week, and there was already a backlog of more than 800 cases.

Problems had arisen after the introduction of section 55 of the 2002 Immigration and Asylum Act in January this year. This ruled that would-be refugees should apply for asylum immediately on arrival in the UK, or as soon as reasonably practicable. The cases causing the problems involved emergency applications for shelter from allegedly destitute asylum seekers, where in 90% of cases, the courts ordered the applicants to be given support.

LABOUR'S DOUBLE STANDARDS: 750 asylum seekers will be living at the Bicester camp (left). Protestors at Lee-on-the-Solent (centre) believe their community could be next. The tranquil hideaway of Finsthwaite by Lake Windermere (right).

Labour snubs the inquiry findings on Bicester camp

But Bev couldn't care less - she's off to the Lake District

JOHAN Prescott told the residents of the Aylesbury Vale villages that he would abide by the findings of an independent public inquiry into the suitability of the Bicester MOD camp becoming an asylum centre!

But now, this has turned out to be yet another New Labour lie, as the Deputy Prime Minister has just given the camp the go-ahead despite planning inspector, Paul Taylor's, report which advised:

"An asylum centre should not be built in this rural location."

The centre is due to open next year, housing 750 refugees, of which 450 will be single young males.

Thames Valley Police have also expressed their concern over the camp, especially as the government has allowed for just seven extra policemen to patrol the local villages.

The Bicester ruling has set alarm bells ringing in Lee-on-the-Solent, where the government wants to house 400 asylum seekers at the Royal Navy base, HMS Daedalus. Here too, twelve months ago, Immigration Minister, Beverley Hughes, told residents that the Government would abide by the findings of the public inquiry. Now, in the light of events in Bicester, she has back-tracked, saying that John Prescott will make the final decision.

HIDEAWAY HUGHES: Bev won't be bothered by asylum seekers at her Lake District retreat.

John Beavis, Chairman of the Daedalus Action Group, called the Government's treatment of the 32,000 protestors who signed a petition against the camp, "obscene".

"Beverley Hughes has lied and she should resign. It's more Government spin, made up of meaningless words and promises." But the Immigration Minister isn't concerned. She can close her mind to the worries of local people in Bicester and Lee-on-the-Solent and escape to her latest country retreat. She's just purchased a delightful £201,000 two-bedroomed cottage at Finsthwaite on the shores of Lake Windermere in the Lake District.

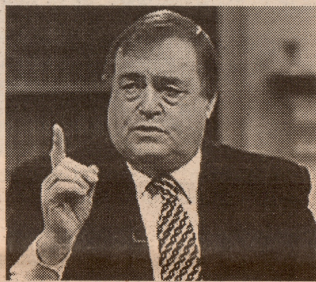

New homes to meet black & minority needs... and not forgetting the refugees!

THE celebrations were short-lived when, at the end of October, Deputy Prime Minister, John Prescott, announced a new £360 million housing project for the West Midlands.

Prescott said the two-year scheme will regenerate deprived urban and rural areas, create more affordable housing and deal with poor quality housing.

But even before young families and first-time buyers in the region could start to toast the Government's generosity, he quickly added.

"The money will also be used to provide homes which meet black and ethnic minority housing needs and deal with issues relating to asylum seekers and refugees."

PUNCHLINE: Prescott knows where Labour's priorities lie.

Now our children's education is starting to suffer

THE Government's chaotic 'dispersal' policy of spreading asylum seekers across the country is having a detrimental effect on the basic education of our British youngsters.

That's the finding of the education watchdog, Ofsted, in a report published in October.

Ofsted looked at nursery, primary, middle and secondary schools in 11 local education authorities in London, urban areas of the East Midlands and the North West, and three shire counties.

The report found numerous cases where existing school resources and staffing were being diverted from British youngsters already at the schools, to meet the needs of the newly arrived asylum seekers.

Many asylum seeker children arrived at school without family members, and were not able to speak or understand English. Staff were being placed in an impossible position in trying to provide a relevant and appropriate curriculum for them.

Chief Inspector of schools, David Bell, warned that schools were facing a very difficult process in dealing with the new arrivals.

Bernard Matthews brings in 600 workers from Portugal

Let's show him what we think of this...

THE BERNARD Matthews turkey ham factory in Great Ickenham in Norfolk is to bring to Britain 600 workers from Portugal because it doesn't want to pay a decent living wage to British workers.

To help ease these Portuguese workers into the way of life in East Anglia, the Kings Lynn Citizens Advice Bureau is laying on special evenings with interpreters on hand to discuss benefit entitlement, housing, consumer rights, debt management and employment with the new arrivals.

The workers will join 1,000 other Portuguese workers already living in nearby Swaffham.

If you object to companies like

Bernard Matthews bringing cheap immigrant labour into Britain from overseas, then there is one way to show your disapproval.

Boycott all Bernard Matthews products the next time you do the shopping!

Asylum Seekers Get £1 Million of Welsh NHS Funds

PATIENTS in Wales waiting for NHS treatment have been shunted to the back of the queue because the Welsh Assembly has squandered more than £1m of NHS money on assessing the needs of and looking after asylum seekers.

The fact that these desperately needed funds were dished out to asylum seekers in Newport, Cardiff, Wrexham and Swansea, was only revealed when Welsh Health Minister, Jane Hutt, was pressed to explain the shortfall in the health budget.

Six thousand Welsh patients, who have been waiting over 18 months for health service treatment, have been sacrificed so that recently arrived asylum seekers could receive treatment.

In a written answer to her critics, Ms Hutt defiantly reported,

"Work is currently progressing to determine the allocation levels to local health boards for the health needs of asylum seekers in 2003-04."

"£1,000,531 was spent by the four local health boards in the cluster areas in the year 2002-03. This money was used to provide for the needs assessments and primary care support of asylum seekers."

Who can they be talking about?

"... very effective – indeed, ... much more sophisticated"

Home Secretary, David Blunkett, October 23rd 2003

"... a new force, sophisticated, clean cut and eager to talk about litter bins and cleaning up local areas."

CRE boss, Trevor Phillips OBE, October 23rd 2003.

It's the BNP of course!

TWO OF the British National Party's fiercest critics have come clean and admitted that the BNP has changed beyond recognition over the last two years and is now expressing the fears and concerns of nearly a quarter of the British people.

According to the Open Democracy website, a recent MORI poll found that 23% of those interviewed said they were unhappy at the multi-racial society in Britain.

Open Democracy reported:

"It is noticeable that people who are most likely to disagree that it is a good thing that Britain is a multi-cultural or multi-racial country live in mostly white areas. 20% of Britons disagree that it is a good thing that Britain is multi-racial; in the north-east and south-west of England, rather more do; in London only 5% do."

The survey figures were revealed in 'The People Flow' debate conducted by Open Democracy which examined the question of how Europe should address the mass movement of asylum-seekers, refugees and economic migrants over the next fifty years.

David Blunkett and Trevor Phillips joined immigration experts to discuss Britain's migration policy debate and how our nation-state is coping with the challenge of finding definition and cohesion in a world of flux.

Both the Home Secretary and the CRE boss took time out to admit the BNP's relevance to the British people and compliment us on our election campaigns this summer.

David Blunkett said:

"The statistics indicate that we do not invent the feelings people have. They have them, and they can be exploited, as the British National Party (BNP) do very effectively – indeed, in a much more sophisticated fashion than ever before. So we in government also have to be more sophisticated."

Trevor Phillips was even more concerned:

"It is no longer the BNP that used to confront us. It has become a new force, sophisticated, clean cut and eager to talk about litter bins and cleaning up local areas."

Labour bullies gang up against Ramon Johns

BACK IN May, 1189 voters in three wards in Broxbourne, Hertfordshire supported British National Party candidates. That was 324 more votes than three Labour candidates could amass in the same seats.

The BNP even managed to get a councillor elected, Ramon Johns in Rosedale Ward, much to the chagrin of Broxbourne Labour Party.

On November 2nd, they held a

BULLIES: Labour trying to whip up anti-BNP hysteria.

conference to try to organise against the BNP in Broxbourne.

Labour MEP Richard Howitt claimed that the town's ethnic minorities were living in fear since 70 year-old taxi driver Ramon Johns had been elected to the council!

Our man at the meeting reported:

"There were two MEPs, half a dozen councillors from as far afield as Cambridge and the same number of community leaders.

The bulk of the audience were trade union delegates who were bemoaning the fact they had been 'arm-twisted' to attend. There were around 60 people in total."

Labour MEP Eryl McNally announced to those present:

"I hope the voters of Broxbourne will not give the BNP any further support."

RAMON JOHNS: BNP Councillor for Rosedale Ward in Broxbourne.

PLEASE SUPPORT OUR EURO ELECTIONS FUND

IT IS vital that we raise at least £200,000 in order to stand as many candidates as possible in the European Elections in 2004. So we need to start this fund now for what could be the most important election campaign that the party has yet contested.

The British National Party intends to stand in every Scottish and English seat and if funds are available also in Wales.

We have a very good chance of winning seats, success that will change the whole political spectrum of politics in this country. It will allow us access to funding the party can use to grow even faster and closer to a Westminster landslide.

Also the best way to prevent further integration into a non-democratic European Superstate, is to stop it from the inside.

Please make all cheques out to "Election Fund" and send them to THE SECRETARY, PO BOX 16, YORK YO61 3YH. Send a SAE for receipts of £25 or under.

British National Party WHERE WE STAND

CRIME: A crack-down on crime with more 'Bobbies on the Beat'. Tougher treatment of criminals, including the return of the death penalty for child killers and terrorists. Zero tolerance for drug-dealers and violent thugs.

IMMIGRATION: An end to immigration and the scandal of bogus asylum seekers flooding Britain. Use the billions now wasted in foreign aid to fund generous 'Homeward Bound' schemes to encourage immigrants to return to their land of ethnic origin.

INDUSTRY: British ownership and control of British industry and resources, including the mass media. Protection of British jobs and industry by selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from the British market.

HEALTH: We will use the vast sums of money now wasted on funding our membership of the EU for the restoration of an effective national health service and proactive measures to produce a healthier population in the first place.

EUROPEAN UNION: British withdrawal from the European Union. We will trade with Europe where it benefits Britain, but want no political ties or monetary union.

EDUCATION: A return to traditional methods of education, with stronger discipline in the classroom and an end to 'trendy' teaching methods which have failed our children so badly.

ENVIRONMENT: A healthy environment for a healthy people - the protection of our countryside; a ban on greenfield-site house building except in exceptional cases of genuine local need and an end to field trials of genetically modified crops.

FARMING & FISHING: The regeneration of British farming, with the objective of achieving the maximum self-sufficiency in food. The restoration of the fishing industry through protection of our traditional fishing grounds.

GOVERNMENT & COMMUNITY: The establishment of a government that puts British interests first. A return to healthy moral values and policies aimed at strengthening the family and community. Tough penalties for corruption in public life.

FREEDOM: A massive expansion of freedom and democracy to roll back the erosion of our traditional freedoms and truly reflect the wishes of the people. The adoption of popular referenda and high technology direct democracy.

DEFENCE: An alternative defence strategy based on the principle of armed neutrality. No British blood should be shed in conflicts which do not involve British interests. The restoration of the County Regiment system and the reversal of defence cuts which have weakened our Armed Forces and cost thousands of jobs.

REMEMBER! It doesn't matter if you don't agree with us on every last thing. Like all other democratic political parties, the BNP includes some members who disagree with one or two policies. Just ask yourself whether you agree with more of our policies than those of the other parties. Most people do, which is why we are the fastest growing political party in Britain today.

New asylum newspeak

ALL asylum seekers are genuine! That's what the Press Complaints Commission has ruled after being swamped by complaints from immigrant and ethnic minority groups.

They have now instructed journalists not to use the term 'illegal asylum seeker'.

The PCC argue:

"An 'asylum seeker' is someone currently seeking refugee status or humanitarian protection, there can be no such thing in law as an 'illegal asylum seeker'.

"An asylum seeker can only become an 'illegal immigrant' if he or she remains in the UK after having failed to respond to a removal notice."

Apparently any idea that they might not be fleeing tyranny or are not genuine asylum seekers must be removed from the public's conscience.

Racism in Devon

AFTER a three year study of 170 black and Asian people living in mid and west Devon, the Home Office has decided that racism is rife in this rural area.

They have awarded a £150,000 grant for an outreach worker who will set up a network of peer counselling for community groups in the area.

People in cities like London, Birmingham and Manchester are mistaken if they think they can get away from Blair's multi-culti 'dream' by selling up and moving to the country.

The police even have three diversity support workers in Devon teaching officers how to deal sensitively with people from all minorities.

Tess launches 'St John' campaign to help save the school budget

TESS Culnane, who is standing as the British National Party's Lewisham and Greenwich candidate for the London Assembly elections next June, has already launched a campaign to save taxpayers' money.

Teachers in Lewisham complained to Tess about the borough's ridiculous practice of sending teachers and teaching assistants away on expensive first aid courses.

The teachers had to travel across London, involving train and bus fares and in some cases congestion charges, and then their schools were being charged £80 plus VAT for the four hour course.

Tess contacted the St John Ambulance Brigade and was told that they did the same course for £30.00 plus VAT at their training centre in Bromley - a much easier journey. They also offer an in-house course which would mean teachers could be trained at their own school.

Tess argued that if the St John

TESS CULNANE: Has also run a very successful campaign to reintroduce checks for head lice into Lewisham schools.

Ambulance Brigade was used for various first aid courses a great deal of taxpayers' money would be saved from the school budget.

She told Freedom:

"St John Ambulance Brigade is an established charity and with their comprehensive knowledge in the field of first aid they should be receiving the funds they so rightly deserve.

"I have spoken to the manager of their Administration Dept., who assured me that specially reduced rates will be offered on block bookings and I have passed this information on to Lewisham Council's Education & Culture Department."

What do Labour and the Lib-Dems think of Tess and her campaigns?

Taxpayers' money being used to promote homosexuality in schools

THE National Children's Bureau, a charity funded by taxpayers' and lottery money, has issued a new manual called "Sex & Relationships" advising school teachers on sex education.

The guide is typical of the politically correct nonsense emanating from the Labour Party, full of anti-family and pro-gay propaganda.

But because the NCB manual is targeting schoolchildren, it has generated vociferous opposition from family campaigners like Family and Youth

Concern, who called it "deplorable stuff" and "material that is to do with an adult left-wing agenda"

The manual wants the words

'boyfriend' and 'girlfriend' banned from the classroom and replaced by 'partner'.

It wants parents to have a condom drawer at home to make sure children have a ready supply.

The word 'sex' is not inclusive enough so it must always have the clarification of 'vaginal, anal or oral' used before it.

The guide also provides a script for a lesson about two teenage boys who are attracted to each other.

The National Children's Bureau openly promotes homosexuality in schools and even supported the issuing of a sex manual in September to nine year-olds teaching them about homosexuality and masturbation.

Lunatic drug legislation puts young lives at risk

ON January 29th 2004, Home Secretary, David Blunkett, will press ahead with his lunatic legislation to downgrade cannabis from a Class B to Class C drug.

This soft line on the drug of cannabis is an invitation for young people to try the drug and will provide a 'gateway' for them to move on to harder drugs such as cocaine and heroin.

In June, doctors warned that smoking cannabis could cost up to 30,000 lives a year, with regular use of the drug linked to an increase in mental illness such as schizophrenia and depression.

CANNABIS: Not just a gateway to hard drugs but a cause of cancer and lung disease.

Smoking cannabis also exposes the user to high levels of tar which may lead to a rise in cancers of the tongue, throat, head and neck, as well as causing lung disease.

Police have also attacked this new tolerant line on cannabis claiming they have no idea how to police it.

One officer told Freedom:

"Someone found with cannabis will not be detained if they can show it is for their personal use.

But we have not been told how much of the drug is acceptable under these guidelines.

I can guarantee you that dealers will exploit this confusion to claim that any reasonable amount they are caught with is for their own personal use!"

ATTENTIVE AUDIENCE: It's a near full house to hear BNP Chairman, Nick Griffin.

Crawley & Horsham launch their European election campaign

MORE THAN eighty people packed last month's Crawley and Horsham meeting to launch the BNP's campaign for next year's European Elections.

The meeting was chaired by Vernon Atkinson, who together with Philip Peters talked briefly about their own experiences as candidates during last May's local council election.

Horsham organiser, Brian Frost, gave an account of the group's current progress and its activities, followed by Brian Galloway, the Crawley organiser, who spoke on the need for Britain's withdrawal from the European Union.

The evening's guest speaker was BNP chairman, Nick Griffin, who spoke on two different topics and his observations were well received and appreciated by everyone present.

The evening's fund raising was boosted by a raffle and also an auction. Andy and Richard Trower, who run a same-day UK courier service, generously made available for auction, one week's use of their luxury holiday home in Florida, which raised £150.

The total amount raised on the night, including a collection, was in excess of £900 and a number from the audience decided to join the BNP after hearing first hand what the party is all about.

READY FOR THE CHALLENGE: Crawley & Horsham BNP members and officials are joined by Nick Griffin for press photographs.

Tories admit "BNP could win in Havering!"

LABOUR and Conservative politicians from Havering Council are concerned about the growing popularity of the British National Party after their recent victory at Thurrock - that's according to the local newspaper covering the Essex borough.

The Conservative Leader of Havering Council, Councillor Eric Munday, told the paper:

"The BNP could win over areas that are presently Labour, if they put up candidates and work hard enough through leafleting, knocking on doors and talking to people.

"The other parties have to keep their eyes on the ball and not become complacent and work hard in their patches."

Organiser for the Havering BNP group, Alan Bailey, said:

"People are waking up to their plight in this country and that is why we are getting more votes.

"They are concerned about crime, law and order, housing, asylum seekers and health care.

"People call us extremists, but I say it is the Government that's being extreme because their policies don't look after the British people. I am not racist, I am a realist. It is not about race, it's about space."

* October 2nd saw the first official meeting of Havering BNP. An 'exceptional turnout' heard speeches from Chris Beadle (Fundholder), Alan Bailey (Organiser), Jason Douglas (Dagenham Organiser), Nick Geri (Thurrock Councillor), Julian Leppert (London Mayoral candidate) and BNP chairman Nick Griffin.

We Need a 'Fortress Britain'

TIME IS RUNNING out for our country. If we want to protect our way of life, our culture and our Christian values something must be done to halt the never ending tide of illegal immigrants entering Britain.

The term 'Fortress Britain' has in the past just been nationalist economic terminology for protecting our manufacturing base from cheap foreign imports - but now it must have an additional meaning.

Fortress Britain should be seen as the need to defend the social cohesion and services of our country from the invasion by economic migrants who seek to exploit what our past generations have striven and fought for. Fortress Britain will need a 25,000-strong new Border Police Force working in conjunction with our Immigration Service to ensure that no illegal immigrant gets beyond any of our airports or docks before being immediately sent back from where they came. A Border Police Force that will go into the 'no-go' areas of our country to track down and deport every last illegal immigrant living in Britain.

Illegal immigrants pose the biggest threat to Britain since German forces amassed on the French coast more than sixty years ago. That invasion didn't take place because we made it clear to the enemy we wouldn't go down without a fight.

The illegal immigrant invasion of our country is taking place because the Labour government is indicating, time and time again, that they don't have the will or means to stop them.

Tories Mugged by Tiny Liberal Clique

FOR all his shortcomings, Iain Duncan-Smith was the democratically elected leader of the Conservative Party. His mandate to lead came from the Conservative party membership who two years ago chose IDS and his 'centre-right' agenda over Ken Clarke and his liberal manifesto.

Now just 90 'centre-left' Tory MP's have disenfranchised the whole Tory Party by removing IDS and replacing him with Michael Howard.

Make no mistake, Howard is no 'right-winger'. He's just an opportunist who will take on whatever political hue will further his parliamentary career.

By mugging the membership of their elected leader and turning their back on the remaining vestiges of Old Conservatism, the parliamentary party has pressed their own self-destruct button.

BNP HELP RAISE LEUKAEMIA AWARENESS: On October 3rd, Tipton BNP joined regulars at the Lagoon pub for a Sprout Eating Contest to raise money for Leukaemia research. BNP councillor, John Salvage, presents a cheque £250 which will go to the Haematology Trust Fund at the New Cross Hospital in Wolverhampton.

Their vile politics of politically correct totalitarianism

TRENDY educationalists are giving out conflicting signals to our schoolchildren, according to a BBC Look North programme last month.

Firstly, they tell students to get more involved with politics and more in-tune with what is going on in present day Britain. Yet then they want to ban websites and message boards which are perceived as being "politically incorrect".

What they are really saying is that they want youngsters to get more interested in the brand of politics they advocate.

They dismiss BNP politics as 'vile' and want all youngsters to accept multi-culturalism without any debate or discussion.

Well, I'm sure our youngsters are well aware of vile politics!

It is the politics where homosexuality is promoted in schools.

The vile politics that shows primary schoolchildren of nine how to use contraceptives.

The vile politics that encourages 'a safe' way of taking drugs.

The vile politics that allows violent criminals back out on to the streets to offend again.

This same vile politics is trying to wipe out our identity and our culture. That is doctoring school text books, re-writing our history to make the British people ashamed of their past.

It demands the acceptance of multi-culturalism without questioning the benefits for Britain. This vile politics is called 'politically correct' totalitarianism.

Follow my example

THIS morning I have closed all my business and personal bankings arrangements with HSBC and Lloyds Bank.

I will not place my money with companies who are putting British workers on the dole by exporting their jobs to India and Pakistan.

In a letter to both banks I made my position very clear as to the reasons why I was leaving.

I run a garage. My customers are British workers who bring their cars to me for servicing. No HSBC or Lloyds Bank workers will be able to support British industry from Asia.

Make your disgust apparent. I hope Freedom readers will follow my example and move their accounts.

R. Walker, Huddersfield.

Definition of racism

THE definition in the Oxford English Dictionary of 'racism' is: "The theory that distinctive human characteristics and abilities are determined by race."

There is no mention of 'hatred' of any sort here.

I am a racist and can see absolutely nothing wrong with being one.

If selected as a candidate for the British National Party next year, I will be confirming this position to the media and electorate.

John Bowles, Bexley.

EDITOR: Over the past ten years the dictionary definition of racism has been rendered meaningless. The media campaign against British nationalism during this time has instilled in the mind of the public that racism means race hate. If you state you are a racist, voters will perceive that you hate black and Asian people.

The British National Party doesn't hate black and Asian people, we just want to stop any more coming to Britain.

Workhouse Britain

SINCE Gordon Brown is doing this level best to make us all work until we are seventy before we receive a pension, may I suggest the following slogan for the party: Labour means workhouse Britain! All this is somewhat of a change for those of us who remember the brave new predictions in 1960 for the future that, "By the year 2000, we will not need so many people in Britain since computers and automation will be doing most of the work for us".

Today, however, they are saying that we need vast numbers of immigrants to be here because our present day natural British birthrate is too low to maintain a viable workforce necessary to do the work available and to pay for old age pensioners' everyday needs!

Meanwhile, more and more major companies are relocating to the Far East and the Third World where it is cheaper to produce their goods and provides a bigger profit.

This seems to defeat the reasons given for the need for more migrant workers in the first place!

Paul Snell, Derby.

Illustrating benefits

ACCORDING to a book called 'Gangland Britain' by Tony Thompson, when Yardies arrived in Bristol in 2000, serious crime went up 72%, GBH went up 52% and rape up by 75%.

If this does not illustrate to the British people the 'benefits' of immigration, I don't know what does.

Ralph Musgrave, Durham.

Unfair Council Tax

THE Prime Minister's income is £175,414 a year while my annual pension is £12,500.

Downing Street is band H for council tax which means Mr Blair pays £1,140 a year. My house is in band D and I pay £1,216. I'm paying nearly 10% of my income on council tax while the Labour leader pays just 0.6% of his.

It takes me a month's pension to pay for my council tax, while Tony has to work for just twelve hours to pay his.

Is there any wonder why pensioners everywhere are pledging NEVER to vote Labour again and are turning in some numbers to support the BNP.

Clive Wilson, Cardiff.

Hardly "youngsters"

LAST month my local paper reported that "youngsters calling themselves the Bengali Boys" were making a nuisance of themselves in the Danehouse area of Burnley.

Police took "ten of these youngsters to court to be served with anti-social behaviour orders in a bid to make them behave."

The report left you with the impression that these were schoolchildren behaving badly. Only the final paragraph revealed that these "youngsters" were ten men aged between 18 and 21 and that their 'anti-social behaviour' included an attack on a white car driver.

This is typical of the reporting of the Lancashire Evening Telegraph which treats the ethnic minorities with kid gloves, yet reports on the BNP with an unfair slant.

There was no better example of this than the coverage given to the Bishop of Burnley's "Don't Vote BNP" message on the day of the Lanehead by-election.

Pauline Hockett, Burnley.

Old Labour, New Labour showdown on Tyneside

A BATTLE between old and New Labour in Newcastle could split the party in half and leave the way clear for the British National Party to gain a foothold in the city.

Experienced Labour councillors have virtually been sacked by Labour HQ in order to make way for women candidates for the 2004 Tyne & Wear local elections. New Labour is insisting that every third candidate selected must be a woman which is leaving a large block of old Labour councillors with nowhere to go.

Labour leaders in the city fear that spurned councillors will stand as Independents in the wards where they have built up a big personal following and in doing so will split the Labour vote down the middle. In May, British National Party candidates in Sunderland and Newcastle polled 15% in many areas of the region. With the party predicting record numbers of candidates in the North East in 2004, there is real concern in Labour circles that a split vote could allow the BNP in.

"Forcing women candidates on Newcastle Labour Party is a recipe for disaster", was how one activist saw it.

"Candidates should be selected on merit. When you have long-serving councillors who can command up to 70% of the vote in their wards, it is completely wrong to forcibly de-select them in the interests of some politically correct dogma."

The European Islamic Union?

THE European Union is refusing to allow any reference to Christianity being the main religion of Europe in their new constitution.

The reasons for this might just have something to do with the rising influence of Islam.

An increase signified in Italy where crosses have been taken down in one school to avoid offending Muslim children, while in Belgium the most popular name for new born babies in the capital, Brussels, is Mohammed!

Give Britain's dairy farmers a fair deal

by Clive Wakley

DURING October hundreds of farmers joined a blockade across Britain in an ongoing campaign organised by Farmers For Action (FFA).

What began as a low-key protest over falling milk prices and the consequent threat of bankruptcy faced by hundreds of dairy farmers, has escalated into a nationwide dispute against the "old enemy" - the milk processors and their friends the supermarket chains.

There was a predictable response from the moribund 'Government approved' National Farmers Union (NFU) who accused FFA of "giving the industry a bad name". This, of course, comes from NFU leader, Sir Ben Gill, who recently received a knighthood for 'services to farming' - although many say 'services to Labour' would be a better way of putting it!

David Handley, the dairy farmer whose true Brit determination almost brought down the Government in the fuel protests, describes FFA as "just an informal network of angry farmers - albeit with an ability to deploy hundreds of people around the country in coordinated mass pickets".

The current dispute is over a two or three pence increase for dairy farmers on a litre of milk, not a lot of money you may think, but enough to make the difference between farmers breaking even or going bust.

FFA complain that while the farm-gate price for milk, currently around 18p a litre, has fallen dramatically in recent years, it still sells for about 43p a litre in supermarkets.

In other words the processors and the supermarkets are effectively squeezing the life out of Britain's dairy farmers as they greedily strive to maximise their corporate profit margins.

Dairy Crest, the country's largest milk processor, whines it has met Mr Handley in an attempt to reach a compromise and, as a result, had increased its farm-gate price by a meagre 0.8 pence per litre! Understandably Mr Handley and FFA remain unimpressed:

"People are absolutely desperate, the processors want to dig in and make life difficult. The position is dire."

One dairy farmer summed up the predicament faced by many dairy farmers:

"I am making no money and am being kept afloat by the bank manager. Things have never been so bad. We have to take action now, or soon we'll all be out of business."

FIGHTING FOR THEIR FUTURE: Dairy farmers blockade a Dairy Crest processing plant at Aspatria in West Cumbria.

PC zealots declare war on pork

FIRST there was the packet of Frazzles confiscated from a child's lunchbox, and now there is the hog roast stall banned from a city centre.

The politically correct zealots' war on pork on behalf of Islamicists living in Britain continues apace.

The application for a traditional hog roast stall in Bath City centre was refused after police said it might upset animal rights campaigners.

Trader, Marie Gibson, wanted to bring the traditional method of cooking a whole pig on a spit to Union Street each Sunday.

In a letter to the council a spokesman for the police's city centre team claimed that such a stall would be inappropriate as it would offend animal rights' campaigners and others.

But this was quickly denied by Sarah Broadwith, of Bath Animal Rights group, who said it was a step too far.

"To my knowledge there has never been a protest against a hog roast. It is minor compared to other things such as fox hunting, ritual slaughter and vivisection.

WHICH DO YOU FIND OBJECTIONABLE: A humanely slaughtered hog roast or the barbaric throat cutting practice of ritual slaughter?

"If you start on hog roasts, it could be Sunday lunches in pubs next. It is just people eating meat. I think it is all rather bizarre."

But actually it's not bizarre at all - Left-wing councillors believe that Britons eating pork might offend Muslims and must be stopped.

It's another draconian measure by the politically correct brigade so as not to upset the growing number of newcomers to our country.

But what is most objectionable about this latest action is that the PC zealots have tried to dress it up as an animal welfare issue.

That is the real travesty here, because the people they don't wish to offend are responsible for halal slaughter - probably the cruelest treatment of animals known to mankind.

BEING USED: Albert Johanneson, Leeds United's popular South African winger from the '60s.

Re-writing history to make us feel guilty

SO desperate is the multi-racial lobby to instil guilt in British people so that they don't complain too much about immigration, that they don't mind telling a pack of lies to achieve their aim.

Their latest ploy has been to re-write the history of Leeds United's brilliant South African winger, Albert Johanneson, who dazzled many a full-back during a spectacular career in the late 1950s and 60s.

Albert was a huge favourite with the Elland Road faithful and in return was a loyal servant to United. But now, an anti-racist campaign in Leeds has claimed that Albert, far from being adored by Leeds fans, continually suffered from racism and died a pauper.

The claim has brought some stinging rebukes from life-long friends of the Johanneson family, who say Albert's memory is being sullied by such nonsense.

"Much of this diatribe is not factual and an insult to his family and the many people who befriended him," Gill Greenwood told the Yorkshire Post.

"Albert never mentioned racism and enjoyed a very good life for many years, but like most UNFAIR: British fishermen have to throw away tons of fish in order not to breach EU laws.

EU madness is filling our seas with rotting fish

FRENCH trawlers fishing in British waters have a catch quota TEN TIMES that of British fisherman.

This is the madness of the European Union and there's more.

What's left of our fishing fleet in Devon and Cornwall is being forced by EU legislation to dump tons of their catch, including cod and monkfish back into the sea because to bring them ashore would be against European law.

The fish are dead and such waste costs our local industry nearly £15 million a year. But now after 12 years of this ludicrous EU policy, our West Country fishermen are reporting that when they pull up their nets they often contain nothing but a mountain of rotting fish.

The British National Party pledges to take Britain out of the EU and restore our rightful fishing limits.

That Tony Blair is ready to tie us in to Brussels even more with the EU constitution is nothing less than treason.

Imports cost jobs

CHEAP foreign imports flooding into Britain have cost 154 jobs in Hindley Green, Bolton.

Electricum, one of the UK's largest independent electrical groups in Britain, is to close all manufacturing operations at their Leigh Road factory.

A spokesman for the firm made no bones about the reasons for the job losses.

"We cannot compete with manufactured electrical goods from the Far East made by using sweat shop labour."

footballers of his time, found things difficult financially in later life.

"His funeral was very well attended, including Leeds United representatives, and a most dignified occasion.

"I can categorically state that these people are making false assumptions and do not have the required knowledge on this subject."

Of course that won't worry the multi-racialists. The truth is of no concern to them as long as the British people are buried under their burden of 'institutionalised racist guilt' and are therefore too timid to voice their concerns over immigration.

'Meet the BNP evening' success in Sheffield

A HIGHLY successful social evening was held at a pub in the Sheffield area of Walsall to help introduce the BNP to the locals. Using a different approach to help get the BNP message across in this part of the town, those attending enjoyed a plate of chicken, sausage, burger, jacket potato, pork pie, black pudding and pickles, accompanied by political videos and speeches from Walsall organiser, William Locke, and Dudley Councillor, Simon Darby. Over 60 attended the evening and raised over £300 for branch funds.

Fifty at Wakefield

MORE than fifty members and supporters attended the October meeting of Wakefield British National Party. Organiser, John Aveyard, gave an update on branch activities and this was followed by an excellent speech from David Huntington. Fundholder, Doug Hamilton, gave a financial report and asked for more funds. The meeting responded well to this call and contributed to a collection of over £160.

Third phase for North West Red Rose Club on target for £13,000

THE campaign to fight the European elections in 2004 is now in its third phase in the North West.

Regional organiser, Bev Jones, set out in June to assess the strengths and capabilities of the units in the area, as the first step to forming a fighting team. Most units in the region were found to be keen and willing to fall into place with a structured approach to the election. The remaining less active units were soon prompted into action, and a few small 'shake-up's' have had a dramatic effect. Phase two of the campaign was to set in motion a regional fundraiser, and this saw the launch of the Red Rose Dinner Club. This has resulted in 130 members signing up to a subscription of £100 each for this very worthy battle, and funds are now starting to flow into local accounts. Anyone who is interested in subscribing to the fund, please see your local fundholder. Phase three is well on the way, and this largely involves a recruitment process. To help in this task, eight area campaign managers have been appointed. To meet your local campaign manager, please be at your next branch meeting, where they will be in attendance.

FOCUS ON ELECTIONS

Halifax and Burnley polls keep BNP on track for Euro MEPs

Calderdale Council Mixenden Ward

Thursday 16th October 2003

J. Pearson (Lib-Dem) 1,210 (47.6%)
Heath Clegg (BNP) 801 (31.5%)
D. Coll (Lab) 475 (18.7%)
S. Loftus (Ind) 56 (2.2%)
Turnout 40.2%

THE British National Party gained its best ever vote and best ever percentage of the vote for Mixenden Ward in Halifax when Heath Clegg polled an excellent 801 votes (31.5%). Unfortunately it wasn't enough to match the huge sympathy vote for Jenny Pearson, the widow of Stephen Pearson who held the seat for the Liberal Democrats and so tragically died this summer, but it was still an encouraging performance. Heath almost polled double the Labour vote despite their very energetic campaign, while the Conservatives, who won the seat back in 2000, couldn't find anyone to stand and face a humiliating vote. Halifax BNP councillor, Richard Mulhall, was quick to congratulate the Liberal-Democrats on their success, but warned them that the BNP campaign in June would be even more vigorous.

"In June we will be making it very clear as to what the Liberal Democrats really stand for. Linked in with the European Election campaign, it will be an ideal opportunity to make voters aware of what the Lib-Dem agenda is all about.

"There were special circumstances with this campaign, but this won't apply next time."

Burnley Council Lanehead Ward

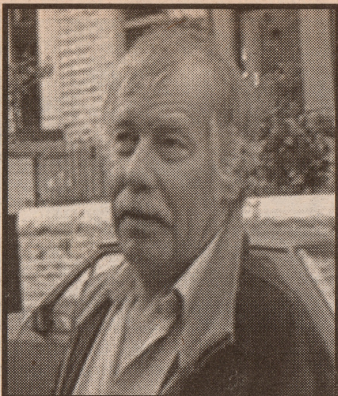

Thursday 16th October 2003.

M. Smith (Lib-Dem) 1,050 (50.1%)
J. Cooper (Lab) 464 (22.1%)
John Cave (BNP) 357 (17.0%)
A. Doyle (Ind) 127 (6.1%)
P. Coates (Con) 98 (4.7%)
Turnout 48.2%

The campaign in Lanehead was the most difficult that any candidate could be asked to contest.

Voters felt betrayed by recent events, and we felt embarrassed over the selection of our previous councillor in Lanehead, so it was a no-win situation for our courageous candidate, John Cave. He worked tirelessly, along with Burnley BNP, to try to shore-up the BNP vote, but it was always going to be an unrewarding task.

JOHN CAVE: Faced a no-win situation in Lanehead Ward.

John did poll 357 votes and came in third behind the Liberal Democrats and Labour. He secured over 17% of the vote, which under the circumstances was a very good effort. That sort of percentage of the vote, if spread across the whole of the North West Euro Constituency, would put the BNP on target to gain two MEPs next June.

The BNP finished 260 votes clear of the Conservative candidate who polled a derisory 4.7%.

Chester-le-Street District Chester North Ward

2nd October 2003

P. Ellis (Lab) 1,114 (48.2%)
B. Bainbridge (Con) 604 (26.1%)
G. Gardner (Lib-Dem) 423 (18.3%)
Scott Morrison (BNP) 170 (7.4%)
Turnout 60.4%

North East Regional Organiser, Kevin Scott, believes that Chester-le-Street is probably our weakest area in the region, so for Scott Morrison to poll 7.4% of the vote was all the more creditable.

"We always knew we would struggle to make an impact here, and with an all-out Conservative campaign in a seat which they thought they could win, it was a great achievement to get a vote of 170," Kevin told Freedom.

"Despite fighting an intense campaign, the Tory vote collapsed from 950 to 600, and next time around that vote should melt away almost completely.

"We now have a small group and an organiser in Chester-le-Street who have already started working to deliver that 17% vote which we need by next June."

In all three by-elections the turnout of voters was markedly higher than at previous elections. This goes to show that when the BNP are standing, more people are motivated to go out and vote.

Rowntree Trust Survey

● THE British National Party has been made aware of some interesting findings after a Rowntree Trust survey on the best way to contest elections.

It is understood that the Trust found that canvassing is the most potent force for maximising your vote. Their research is also believed to have found that a canvassing team made up of four LOCAL people, including the candidate, would need to spend three hours a day, for EVERY day of the campaign, to ensure that campaigners tap into all their support in the ward.

Scrap the CRE - Let's have more British nurses

A DOZEN BNP activists from the Blackpool region demonstrated outside the Conservative Party Conference at the beginning of October.

They were drawing attention to a speech there by Trevor Phillips, chairman of the Commission for Racial Equality (CRE), in which he "declared war on the BNP".

The BNP demonstration called for the £20 million CRE budget to be scrapped, and diverted to fund 1500 nurses instead!

Mr Phillips was given notice that his obscenely paid position, commanding a salary of £94,000 a year would be made redundant under a BNP Government.

TORY CONFERENCE: Ian Hague (foreground) led the successful demonstration in Blackpool.

Sixty at Pudsey

THE first meeting of the newly formed Pudsey BNP took place on Wednesday 22nd October 2003 in a local conference hall.

More than sixty members and supporters listened to speeches from Chris Beverley and Andy Kershaw.

Paul Cromie started the collection with a generous donation of £50 which boosted the final total to over £300.

During the interval, Pudsey South BNP candidate, Richard Warrington, met local supporters and explained about Pudsey BNP's first victory in April 2003, when council plans for settling asylum seekers in a local housing estate were leaked to BNP activists. A lightning leaflet drop on the estate and surrounding streets in the following days brought a public outcry and total u-turn by the council!

After the interval, Nick Cass from Dewsbury told the meeting about the brutal attack on Lee Massey and his two friends by around 15 to 20 Iraqi 'asylum seekers' and the shocking media blackout of this horrific incident.

All systems go for the BNP in the North East

by Trevor Agnew

THE North East region is delighted to report that during the last month FOUR new groups have been set up.

Stockton & Sedgefield has English teacher, Alan Hardy, as secretary and James McPherson as its man-on-the-spot in Sedgefield. Cleveland, which covers the Redcar and Middlesborough area is now being organised by former Conservative Party election candidate, Andrew Harris.

Derwentside and North Durham is being run by Scott Morrison who was the BNP's candidate in the recent Chester-le-Street by-election. Ex-serviceman, Scott, was decorated three times during the first Gulf War, but now he works in IT. The group will cover the former coal and steel areas around Consett, Stanley and Chester-le-Street.

David Walton's Easington group takes in more once proud coal-mining areas, including Peterlee, Seaham, Murton & Wingate.

October saw a meeting held in Bishop Auckland and a new group and organiser here is expected to be announced shortly.

One place in the North East where the BNP isn't moving as fast as we would like is Hartlepool. However we are in contact with UKIP officials in the town who have expressed an interest in bringing their group across to join the BNP - watch this space!

IMPORTANT NOTICE

From the BNP Administration Department

British National Party membership for 2004 commences on the 1st October 2003.

Early renewal of membership would be very much appreciated to help alleviate the usual deluge we receive in January.

The processing time for membership cards is up to 6 weeks, so please do not write or telephone asking about the progress of your application within this period because you will just add to the workload.

Applicants should write their details clearly in block capitals and remember to include their names, and names of other family members if applying for family membership. Signatures are often impossible to decipher so names are essential.

Applicants for reduced rate membership of £12.00 must declare if they are a student, OAP or unwaged. If these details are not declared, the application will be unwaived.

Membership numbers with renewals are vital for speedy processing. Please do not enclose press cuttings, letters, or orders for publications with membership applications. Please do not use staples.

If sending postal orders, applicants should retain stubs as proof of posting.

Please do not send cash.

Without exception, any payments made by cheque to the BNP that are not honoured will result in membership being refused.

THE ASSOCIATION OF British Ex-Servicemen (ABEX) is a tribute to the men and women who fought and served in two world wars across the globe and since 1945 are still standing up for their country.

We are delighted to launch our new website this month to keep our members in touch with both old comrades and new colleagues alike.

If you fought for or have served Great Britain, we would be honoured to be able to respectfully share your experiences by including them in our special 'memories section'.

If you know of a loved one who has a story to be told, then please get in touch before the true history and stories of these gallant souls is either re-written or forgotten!

ABEX make regular trips to British Forces Cemeteries in France, and Flanders in particular. If you have family that are buried there, we would be honoured to pay them our respects on your behalf.

We hope you will visit the ABEX website and make contributions of photographs, experiences and memories for the benefit of British patriots everywhere.

News from Birmingham

BNP to contest Stockland Green by-election; Petition and litter patrols raise BNP's profile

ROB PURCELL is the British National Party's candidate for this month's Stockland Green by-election for Birmingham City council which is to be held on November 20th.

The ward is a Labour stronghold with their candidate, Penny Holbrook, topping the poll in May with 1700 votes (47%) and finishing 900 votes clear of the Conservative candidate back in second place. The Lib-Dems came third with 679 votes (19%).

Stockland Green has an ethnic minority which makes up 25% of its population.

Rob, whose 25th birthday is the day after polling day, is quite hopeful that he will also be celebrating one of the BNP's best results in the city.

He told Freedom:

"We have been getting some positive feedback and third place could be within our reach (before last May we had never finished higher than fourth in the city).

A good result for us in Stockland Green should herald further progress next June as the long-oppressed silent majority wake up to the fact that the BNP is making an impact in Birmingham and can make things happen in the city.

Local residents in historic Yardley Old Village asked BNP candidate, Rob Purcell, to campaign for their village to become an alcohol-free zone.

Recently it has been blighted by anti-social behaviour and under-age drinking, leaving elderly residents frightened even to go to church after dark.

Yardley Old Village is a conservation area and includes St Edburgha's Church, one of the oldest buildings in the entire city. However, beer cans are now a common sight amid the graves of the churchyard and the adjoining green, park and cottages.

So Rob launched a petition and collected more than four hundred signatures. His efforts were praised by the vicar of St Edburgha and supported by the police. The petition was put before the licensing committee of the City Council and is now under discussion.

Not just satisfied with collecting names, Birmingham activists have responded to the litter problem with their own patrols which bagged up EIGHT black sacks of discarded rubbish.

BNP benefit from the turmoil in UKIP

CLEAR MESSAGE: Unlike with the United Kingdom Independence Party, there's no confusion as to the BNP's stance on Europe. We want British independence, not to become a province of the United States of America.

by Bob Gertner

SATURDAY 11th of October saw London BNP members handing out leaflets entitled "Save Britain From Europe" to the demoralised members of the United Kingdom Independence Party as they left their annual party conference held in Westminster, Central London.

Disillusioned UKIP delegates eagerly snapped up our informative literature spelling out to them the woes of their own party. These include the financial problems that now dog the party, attempts by their NEC to impose candidates on regions, the defection of one of their MEPs to the Tories, as well as vast overspending on Scottish and Welsh elections, and many of their other problems.

UKIP's new American alignment message, which has replaced its old 'independent Britain' stance, has confused voters, upset the membership and angered some of the party's main financial backers.

All this comes at a time when there is deep unease within UKIP regarding the prospects at next year's European elections. A number of commentators believe that their electoral gains of 1999 will be wiped because of the BNP's fantastic success in recent months and its ever increasing membership numbers, which include many high quality defectors from UKIP's own ranks.

Hypocrisy, self-delusion and incompetence

VISCOUNT Exmouth, a former UKIP General Election candidate, spoke from the heart when he described his despair and frustration at the chaotic state to which his party has recently sunk.

In an open letter to members and supporters he questioned UKIP's approach to elections and the amateurism of its marketing strategy. He said that May's council election results were derisory, but were being claimed 'a triumph' by the leadership.

Paul (Viscount) Exmouth went on: "Who in his right mind is going to support a party that has no view on the issue which has dominated the news for a year - the War in Iraq. Why should the electorate take our views on the EU seriously when that is the only issue we address?

"I hear too much nonsense about Tory Party moles and the major parties being worried by UKIP.

"I am angry at the hypocrisy, self-delusion, incompetence and waste of money. The hard working members of UKIP have been, and are being, badly served.

"The appeal of democracy is that different views can be expressed and discussed, but the leadership's attitude is, don't express them and never discuss them."

It's a heartfelt reaction from a politician who describes himself as "pro UK Independence - with all that this implies".
